

Board minutes Case Study

The Church Clerk had a vision of a Refugee Family in their worship service and was adamant that he felt the church being called to this mission effort. For once, all members of the Board expressed their views about the congregation hosting a Refugee Family. The meeting was long and productive with no final decision being reached before it became too late in the night. As was the tradition in order to get information quickly to the congregation, the minutes were printed in the weekly newsletter & sent electronically to all members on Friday. The Church Clerk wrote that the church will sponsor a refugee family with housing provided in the currently empty parsonage.

Discussion Questions:

What is inappropriate in this scenario?

How might this conflict be resolved?

Board minutes Case Study

The Church Clerk had a vision of a Refugee Family in their worship service and was adamant that he felt the church being called to this mission effort. For once, all members of the Board expressed their views about the congregation hosting a Refugee Family. The meeting was long and productive with no final decision being reached before it became too late in the night. As was the tradition in order to get information quickly to the congregation, the minutes were printed in the weekly newsletter & sent electronically to all members on Friday. The Church Clerk wrote that the church will sponsor a refugee family with housing provided in the currently empty parsonage.

Discussion Questions:

What is inappropriate in this scenario?

How might this conflict be resolved?